

Public-Private Partnerships at the Regional Local Authority Level

Okazaki City

Situation (background, aims, etc.)

The era of population decline has completely changed conventional town planning. In addition, it has become difficult for the government to play the central role in responding to increasingly diverse social issues and citizens' needs. For these reasons, it has become necessary to provide public services through high-quality and efficient public-private partnerships established with diverse players including private businesses, organisations, NPOs and citizens.

Details (project outline, etc.)

- Public-private Partnership Platform
- QURUWA strategy
- Achiwa District, Okazaki City Industrial Park Development Project
- Project to Use the Car Park Site at Okazaki Station West Exit for Bicycle Parking

Results (features and innovations, future developments, etc.)

By creating links with private markets through public-private partnerships, we aim to improve the quality of public works projects and to create new markets.

Moreover, in establishing a framework in which the private market can act autonomously, we are prioritising focuses such as the participation of local companies, public-private dialogue, and not pursuing project structuring at an overly early stage. In the future, we aim to utilise a sustainable platform which enables the private sector to play the leading role in structuring projects.
